The Case for Heaven
A Journalist Investigates the Evidence for Life After Death
Lee Strobel

Think about how your life might change today—your priorities, your decisions, and worldview—once you ascertained with confidence what awaits you at the conclusion of your time in this world. After all, if there really is an afterlife, you'll be spending a lot more time there than here. – Lee Strobel

- Lee, several years ago you had a dramatic brush with death. Tell us about that dark time and how it got you thinking about heaven.
 - Do you believe it is possible to know with reasonable certainty what happens to us after we die?
 - What are some ways people deal with their fear of death – and how can this phobia be overcome?
 - What are the biggest factors for believing every living person has a soul?
 - Tell us how the smell of coffee helped lead you to believe in the existence of a soul.
 - What is your opinion about Near-Death Experiences? Is there any corroboration that shows they're real? How have some of the very public fake NDEs affected your thinking about them?
- Can you describe the Pyramid to Heaven and why it is important in knowing the existence of life after death?
 - How would you describe heaven? Is it one unending church service? What are the biggest misconceptions about it?
 - Your book wrestles with seven frequently asked questions about heaven. What surprised you about the answers you found?
 - Do you believe God welcomes our questions or do you think he is offended by them?
 - Why in a book on heaven did you devote two entire chapters to hell?
 - Can you define the increasingly popular idea of annihilationism and its role in current theology?
 - Why is universalism appealing? Do you find it to be problematic?
 - What are the issues around reincarnation? Is it Biblical? Doesn't Jesus teach reincarnation?
 - What do you want written on your tombstone, Lee?
