

Interview Questions for Max Lucado

*“God does great things through the greatly broken.
It’s not the strength of the vessel that matters;
it’s the strength of the One who can use it.”*

-Max Lucado

- ▶ Your new book isn’t written for the “super saint,” but for those with a “tilted halo.” Do you count yourself among the first group or the second?
- ▶ It can be sobering to acknowledge that we are all fumlbers, strugglers, doubters. What is the upside of this gloomy news?
- ▶ God Never Gives Up on You highlights the story of Jacob, the Old Testament patriarch. Why Jacob?
- ▶ Why did Jacob try to bargain with God? Why do we do the same, and does it ever work?
- ▶ Sometimes the misdeeds of others hurt us as much as our own bad choices. How did God use Laban’s misdeeds for good in Jacob’s story? What can we learn from Jacob and Laban?
- ▶ You describe how Jacob needed to come face-to-face with his past so he could move into his future. Tell us how this may be needed in our lives today.
- ▶ You write that Jacob was stuck in a “poisoned system.” How did he get out, and how can we do the same?
- ▶ Why did God give Jacob a second chance? How do we know God will do the same for us?
- ▶ What holds us back from accepting God’s grace? What holds us back from offering it to others?
- ▶ How does the truth of Christ’s death, burial, and resurrection repair the brokenness we feel?
