

Interview Questions
Where'd My Giggle Go
A New Children's Book by
Max Lucado

Parenting and Grandparenting in an Age of Anxiety

"No-giggle's no fun. No fun, no sirree. No-giggle is not the best way to be." - Max Lucado

- How can we help our littlest children process their feelings?
- Feelings are pretty big for some kids. Tell us a time you had to parent or grandparent a child with "big" feelings. How did you handle it?
- How can parents affect a child's emotional well-being?

- What advice would you give a new parent on how to find happiness?
- You cover most of the major emotions in Where'd My Giggle Go – joy, sadness, anxiety, grumpiness – why is that important to show a range of emotions to our youngest kids ages 4-8?

- How did you make the idea of "happiness happens when you give it away" understandable for young kids?
- You have written about happiness quite a bit. How have you seen the "road to joy being less about getting and more about giving"?

Guest: Max Lucado, New York Times bestselling author, pastor
Book title: Where'd My Giggle Go
Publisher: Thomas Nelson
Available: April 2021, wherever books are sold
More Info: MaxLucado.com